How to get to our Marbella's head office

If you travel by plane

The airport of Málaga is the main reference both for national and international flights: it is less than an hour away from Marbella, and there's a direct bus from the Airport to Marbella which leaves from Terminal 3. If you have rented a car, you only have to leave the airport towards Cádiz – Algeciras, and drive through A7 for 50 km, approximately 33 minutes, until you find the exit to Marbella. As an alternative, it is also possible to fly to Seville or Jerez de la Frontera. The airport of Gibraltar is only an option of you're travelling from the UK, since it rarely receives flights from other countries.

If you travel by bus

The most used access line is the one connecting the Airport of Málaga with Marbella Bus Station: there are several daily trips which take approximately 60 minutes.

If you're travelling by car

The motorway to watch out for is the A7 because runs all the seaside and connects all its towns. If you're travelling from Málaga, you will first leave Torremolinos, then Benalmádena and before reaching Fuengirola you'll be able to choose the toll AP7 or follow the A7.

If you travel by train

The train does not reach Marbella, it only goes up to Fuengirola. It is practical to travel on AVE to Málaga (María Zambrano Station) and then move to Marbella by bus.

If you travel by ship

You can also get to Marbella by ship, but bear in mind that the Marinas of the city do not host the marine traffic of passengers, only private vessels.

Guests with reduced mobility are welcome
